Jordan Cole, 2011 Telstar graduate, dies in Greenwood Road accident

By ANDREW CULLEN, Sun Media Group; CITIZEN STAFF

Nineteen-year-old Jordan Cole of Greenwood was killed Tuesday night, and three young passengers were hospitalized Tuesday night, when Cole's 1990 Jeep Wrangler left the road while rounding a curve on the Greenwood Road.

The car traveled into a steep ravine and rolled over, Oxford County Cpl. Brian Landis said.

Cole died at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway sometime after the 7:49 p.m. accident, despite paramedics' efforts to revive him at the scene via CPR, Landis said.

OCSO Deputy Chief Dane Tripp, said Wednesday that it appeared Cole was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident.

Passengers Holden Bean, 16, of Bethel, Taylor Maddocks, 16, of Gilead, and Katelyn Sumner, age not available, of Bethel also were taken to Stephens Memorial for treatment.

Maddocks and Sumner were treated in the emergency room and released Tuesday night, a nursing supervisor at Stephens Memorial said.

The teenagers were returning home after going out for pizza at a Norway restaurant when the accident occurred, Landis said.

Maine State Police were called in to investigate the acci-

Rebel boys take MVC X-C crown

By ALISON ALOISIO

For the first time in 34 years, the Telstar High School Boys' Cross-Country Team last Saturday won the Mountain Valley Conference Championship.

The Rebels bested nine teams at the Augusta meet, winning by 20 points over second-place Boothbay, the three-time defending champion.

Telstar, which last won the MVC in 1977, put all five of its scoring runners in the top 16 places in the 5-kilometer competition. Scoring were Josef Holt-Andrews (third in 17 minutes, 15 seconds), Ben Lewis (fifth, 18:14), Adam Mahar (eighth, 18:45), Bronson Dean (13th, 19:22) and Matthew Keane (16th, 19:40).

"Senior Casey Kellner assisted with gapping the competition by placing ahead of all the competitions fifth-scoring runners in 27th 20:21," said Coach Dan Crooker.

The team effort began long before the race, he said.

He said the runners have

Bethel selectmen grapple with too many cats

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel's growing population of stray cats is eluding the town's attempts to control it.

"It really is overwhelming, when you look at the whole cat situation," resident Jackie Schuessler told town selectmen Monday.

"We're overrun with cats," said Schuessler, who lives on Middle Intervale Road. "I have 13 cats at my home now, strays."

"Something has to be done." She got no argument from the town's animal control officer, Sue Milligan, who cited Bethel Park Apartments as "a perfect example."

"The cats are swarming up there, and they just keep reproducing. I think the two I took in today were pregnant, and they just had litters a couple of months ago," Milligan said. "If we don't cut it off at some point, then it's going to get completely out of control."

'If we don't cut it off at some point, then it's going to get completely out of control.'

SUE MILLIGAN,

Bethel ACO, on the local population of stray cats

Current town policy on loose cats calls for Milligan to use her discretion when deciding whether or not to pick an animal up.

"Right now we go on a case-by-case basis, depending on the situation. We don't handle strays per se," Milligan said.

"But if you've got kittens running loose, if you've got cats that are causing a problem, if they're sick, if they're injured - and obviously some of those I already do."

When Milligan does pick up a stray, the question becomes what to do with it.

She is sometimes able to leave the cat with Responsible Pet Care of Norway, which charges $22 to take the animal in. (A previous arrangement, with Allen Hill Animal Shelter in Oxford, ended earlier this year, when that shelter closed its doors.)

But the town does not have a contract with RPC for cats (it does for dogs), so RPC is not obligated to take the animal.

When space is available, RPC does, but often there is no space.

"Then I'm stuck with them," Milligan said, "so I have to hold them until there's space, and I can't do that at home any more."

Towns with contracts for cats have priority for avail-

Chair: Natural-gas group will complete assignment

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Bethel Natural Gas Ad Hoc Committee will meet Tuesday, Oct. 25 in the Town Office meeting room, "and people are invited to come and listen," Chairman Jackie Cressy said.

Among the questions to be addressed at the meeting is whether the committee will continue with its study of the economic feasibility of bringing natural gas service to Bethel.

Cressy, who took over as chairman following the resignation earlier this month of the group's original chair, Chris Garner, told town selectmen Monday the exploratory process is continuing despite Garner's sudden resignation.

"A lot of material was very carefully prepared by Mr. Garner," Cressy said.

"There's a lot of work that's being done. The committee is not dysfunctional."

"A lot of factors have to be taken into consideration before the committee feels confident in making a recommendation to the board and the community," Cressy said.

Woodstock board eyes used Ohio fire truck

By ALISON ALOISIO

Woodstock selectmen Tuesday pondered the purchase of a new squad truck for the Fire Department, approved $300 to help the Lakes Association close a funding gap and learned of a possible open house at the Spruce Mountain Wind project site.

Fire Chief Geff Inman said the WFD's current squad truck, which carries supplies in support of emergency operations, is getting "tired." "It's getting bad," he told the board.

Inman said he has located a used truck in Ohio with an asking price of $30,000. A new one can cost around $150,000, he said.

The Ohio truck has a pump and water tank, could carry the department's cold water rescue equipment, and would provide a warm place for the rescuers in cold weather, he said.

Money to purchase the vehicle would come from the department's Reserve Account.

Wide variety of folks sit down for monthly suppers

By ALISON ALOISIO

An idea to provide a monthly meal to people affected by a poor economy has grown into an opportunity for community-wide fellowship.

For the past year and a half, the Bethel Alliance Church has hosted a free Community Supper on the last Wednesday of each month.

The Rev. Kevin Bellinger said community member Jean Waite "had a vision about feeding some families in the community who were struggling."

According to Waite, the idea came "from a concept known as 'Communities In Service to Themselves.' So often the focus on giving is on emergency needs, especially for victims of natural disasters and holidays, both of which are very important," she said. "Sometimes we forget that the communities that we live in need our care and attention, too. The one thing that unites us universally is food, because we all need to eat. So the idea was to provide a meal once a month that was free of charge and open to the community, as a way for the community-at-large to support itself. And I think it is very important to give people a chance to get together, share a meal and feel part of the community."

The downstairs dining hall at the church proved to be the perfect setting.

For the church, said Bellinger, "we thought it would be a wonderful opportunity for community outreach."

Initially, volunteers from the church delivered flyers about the supper to several apartment complexes in Bethel, he said.

Church members were also encouraged to attend and bring members of the community, to provide a good mix of company.

A variety of members and volunteers brought in food, and the first gathering drew about 60 people. "We got some people who could afford a meal (mostly elderly), and they asked to donate," he said. That group, he said, was attending for the opportunity to socialize.

Donations have been put toward the purchase of such items as drinks, paper plates

NATURE'S WONDERS IN MACRO 3D

To the Editor:

The 22nd Annual Meeting of the Mahoosuc Land Trust is this Sunday, Oct. 23. We are excited to offer an unusual guest speaker whose presentation will both awe and inspire his audience. Professor Roger Richmond of the University of Maine at Augusta will present "Art of the Earth...Nature's Natural Wonders in Macro 3-D." I saw this program last spring and was so impressed that I immediately invited Dr. Richmond to speak at MLT's annual meeting.

The meeting will be held at Gould Academy's Ordway Living room, upstairs in Ordway Hall, at 7 p.m. After a short business meeting, we will all put on our 3-D glasses (supplied by Dr. Richmond) and be transported into the fantastic world of nature in ways we have never seen it before.

I encourage members and friends of Mahoosuc Land Trust to join us Sunday evening!

WINTER-THEMED ARTIRONDACK

To the Editor:

It is the time of year again when the Mahoosuc Arts Council seeks new and previous artists to volunteer to paint a winter-themed ARTironhack chair to raise money for arts programming in Bethel. The beautiful, one-of-a-kind chairs will be featured and exhibited throughout the community before the fundraising auction event which will take place during February vacation week next year.

The ARTironhack Auction is a major fundraising project for the Council. All proceeds go toward supporting outstanding visual and performing arts programming for the adult and student populations of the greater Bethel area. At the same time, local artisans who create beautiful, functional works of art are celebrated and marketed.

What ARTironhack ARTists do:

— Obtain one, primed ARTironhack Chair from the Council. We can deliver to your home.

— Paint the design of your choice — Family event appropriate subject matter please. (Paints MUST be for outdoor/exterior applications: exterior latex or oil-base).

— Finish the chair in non-yellowing Ultra Violet protectant polyurethane of your choice.

— Call the Council to have your chair picked up

— Come to the ARTironhack Auction and experience the philanthropy and fun!

Go to: www.mahoosucarts.org/ARTironhack.html for photos of past chairs for ideas and inspiration.

We are proud to say that some of our ARTironhack ARTists have found new opportunities or have received commissions directly as a result of ARTironhack advertising efforts.

We have a limited number of chairs for volunteer artists. Artists can obtain chairs on a first come, first served basis, so please call soon if you are interested in volunteering for ARTironhack. FMI: info@mahoosucarts.org or 824-3575.

THANKS FOR THE TRAINING OPPORTUNITY

To the Editor:

We would like to thank Mt. Abram for giving us the opportunity to use their old lodge for training. We in the fire service don't get the opportunity to have large-scale buildings like that very often, so when the chance came that we could we grabbed it.

We were able to have several other towns be there to get training also; we had Greenwood, Woodstock, Newry, South Paris and a few from Bethel and Gilead also. We were able to do several fires in the basement over and over, then around noon we lit several fires throughout the whole building to start a controlled burn, which brought the whole building down.

This was a very emotional day for many of the townspeople and all that had for years come to the mountain to learn to ski, but as I said before we are grateful to get this level of training from the old lodge. We wish the mountain's owners have a very good year to come and can't wait to see the new and improved lodge.

We also want to take this time to thank Poland Spring bottling for donating the water we had for rehab. In the past year that I've been chief we received around three pallets of water for the fire department; we have had this for the fires and for training plus we hand it out to townspeople during bad weather, like when Irene came through. This is such a blessing that we have a company like this to give us water when we need it.

BUSINESS EXPO AND TASTING EVENT

To the Editor:

The public is invited to the first annual Oxford County Business EXPO & Tasting Event on Saturday, Oct. 29 at Telstar High School from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. This is the fifth year the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce has organized an EXPO, but this year we are expanding it to businesses throughout the county! Each community in the county has their distinctive assets — and we want to support the entire regional economy at this event. We are also expanding the Tasting event to include restaurants throughout Oxford County and that event will be held from noon until the food runs out, so come early. Tickets will go on sale at 11:30.

This is the first year that we have held the event in October. The planning committee made this decision for many reasons — the greatest being the fact that last year (and several other years before that), we had winter weather travel issues that hurt the attendance at the event.

There are many reasons to attend the EXPO — in addition to the great food. The business vendors who are registered will be showcasing their products and services, and many of them will have raffles at their booths. A grand prize raffle will be a cord of firewood, delivered, compliments of Cross Excavation — and there will be two cash raffle prizes compliments of the chamber. There still are a limited number of vendor spaces available for the EXPO at a very reasonable price. This is a great way to connect with potential new customers. Please contact us if you have any interest.

The support for this event has been tremendous! Norway Savings Bank is the Presenting Sponsor of the EXPO and W.J. Wheeler Insurance Agency is the sponsor of the Tasting Event. Major media sponsors are Sun Media Group and Gleason Media Services. Supporting sponsors are United Insurance, Northeast Bank and Turner Publishing. Additional sponsors are Western Maine Supply, Arsenault's Satellite TV, Saunders Bros/WoodGems and Western Maine Property Protection. Telstar High School is the host of this event. We have enjoyed support from Ivory Carrier with the electrical hook-up.

We are seeking volunteers to help with both the Business EXPO and the Tasting event. We reward our volunteers with complimentary "tastes" so, if you have interest in being part of our team, please give our offices a call ASAP — 824-2282. Be on the lookout for a flyer-insert that will be enclosed in next week's edition of The Bethel Citizen. Keep it and bring it with you to receive one complimentary "taste." See you on Oct. 29 at Telstar High School!

WATERFORD CONGREGATIONAL POTLUCK SUPPER

To the Editor:

Waterford Congregational Church is hosting its annual Harvest Potluck Supper on Saturday evening, Oct. 29, at 5:30 p.m. This event, a fundraiser for Heifer International, is open to the public, so please come and bring friends and neighbors. Costumes are optional.

Everyone, adult or child, is invited to enter a decorated pumpkin in the pumpkin contest. You can carve, paint or do a Martha Stewart craft on your pumpkin and everyone will vote for their favorites by putting change in the container in front of each pumpkin. The pumpkin that collects the most money will be the winner, and its decorator will have a picture taken for the newspaper.

This event is our major fundraiser for Heifer International. Their mission is to provide livestock to families in the U.S. and all over the world to empower families to turn lives of hunger and poverty into self-reliance and hope. Each family who receives an animal agrees to give one of the animal's offspring to another family in need. This is called "Passing on the Gift." Each year a decision is made on what type of livestock we will request according to the amount of money collected. The most expensive is a heifer which costs $500 and the least a flock of chicks, ducks, or geese which cost $20.

This event is open to people of all ages. Bring a dish to share for the supper. Rolls, cider and coffee will be provided. Why not try your hand at decorating a pumpkin to bring to the supper and we can all help to "Pass on the Gift." The event will be held at the Wilkins House beside the church on Plummer Hill Road in Waterford Flat.

The First Years: Matilda Comes, Living off the Land

This first summer it seemed that I never did anything but fight weeds. Looking back from the vantage point of later years, I realize that weeding is only a small part of the total effort in making a vegetable garden. The ground must be yearly plowed and harrowed, manure must be hauled out and spread, bean poles must be set. In the fall crops must be harvested and stored for the winter, cornstalks either pulled or plowed under, dead vines pulled and carried away. Without the weeding though, nothing prospers. Is all this effort worth it? Economically, no. Hand labor cannot pretend to compete in an industrialized society. The time you spend might be worth ten cents an hour. A job for a few weeks at the lowest wage would buy all the vegetables needed for a year. Isn't weeding dull work? Never. The body is refreshed on a damp day by moisture and mud on the skin, on a bright day by sun and breezes. You can quote to yourself or aloud all your favorite poetry. You can try to translate your thought into French or whatever foreign language you have a smattering of.

If one is vain, one can think of weeding as a beauty treatment. The tan acquired is as fine as any from seashore or lakeside. The muscle tone surpasses that received in a week at an Elizabeth Arden camp. Never yet have I had a friend say she did not like gardening who was not losing or had lost the battle of the bulge.

If you are a gourmet eater, the flavor of a sun-ripened tomato freshly picked from the vine will spoil you forever, and you will not ever want to buy a store tomato again. Even the ones that you wrap in tissue, place in a box in a dark place to ripen, after frost comes taste better. Greens picked, washed, cooked before fifteen minutes passes make you think you are eating emeralds. Everyone knows that green peas and sweet corn freshly picked and cooked are quite different vegetables from those that pass for such in the stores. Cucumbers fresh in the summer or pickled for winter have a special crunch.

If you are a sociologist, you can wonder as you weed about a cure for the ills of society. Are the measures that Congress passes something like yanking the tops off witch grass? What can be done about the white eyes left underground to sprout more ills? If you are a philosopher, you can identify with the ancients and their worship of Mother Earth. If you are a moralist, you can find satisfaction in conquering stubborn enemies. If you are a gardener, you love it; no effort is too much for love.

If you have flower gardens as well as a vegetable garden, you are creating beauty and providing yourself with never-ending chores. I once thought that a carefully planned perennial border once established would return bloom from spring to autumn with a minimum of work. (I thought the same about a house; once papered, painted, the furniture refinished or upholstered, it would last. Not so.) A flower garden is a never-ending process of many little chores. What did you do in the garden today? Occasionally the answer can be dramatic and you can point out a special spot where your labors show, as dividing all the iris clumps. Usually you can't remember exactly what you did do but the reward for all the little chores is high. You live in a world of color and fragrance; the cheer of daffodils along the gray stone wall in May; the gold of a thousand blossom-covered Huguonis rose in June; the burst of red Lancaster and white York roses on each side of the pumphouse steps in July; the cooling masses of white phlox, Shasta daisies and Blue Scotch thistles in August; the many-hued hollyhocks waving their tall stalks against the silver weathered shingles in September.

The Facts: Wind not seen as the wave of energy future

By GORDON L. WEIL, Maine Center for Public Interest Reporting

To listen to talk about the world's energy future, you might think that wind, solar and other renewable resources are the wave of the future. A quarter century from now, green power would have replaced traditional fuels for electric generators. Not so, says the U.S. Department of Energy in its just-published annual International Energy Outlook. The report comes from the impartial Energy Information Administration, which is distinct from the promotion and regulatory roles of DOE.

While the use of renewables will increase at a faster rate than other resources, the world power supply in 2035, including in the United States, will still depend mainly on today's principal fuels - coal and natural gas.

Wind-powered generating capacity will have an impressive annual rate of increase worldwide, but it starts from a low base, so it will end up supplying less than five percent of total U.S. electric generation capacity. And we get less power out of wind generators than we get from fossil-fuel generators, because of the uncertainty of their output as the wind blows.

Among the world's green power resources, wind is now a distant second to hydro power and, despite its gains, will remain there. Hydro capacity is expected to grow by 2.8 percent annually in China, though only by a tiny amount in the U.S., despite considerable potential. Concerns about the environment and fish passage here have taken more hydro development off the table, while in most of the world it remains the favorite renewable.

Federal and state governments have been devoting significant sums to the development of wind power. As a result, the rate of growth of this resource has exploded over the past few years. Now tax breaks and subsidies are fading, and the forecast is for much less growth in the United States, though it will score gains elsewhere.

Maine may have cornered a niche position in developing renewables. It is playing a big role in studying off-shore wind power, which could be an economic plus for a small state. But, in the grand scheme of things, this added supply would amount to relatively little.

Even less significant than wind is solar power. Yet, with a $535 million loan guarantee, the federal government generously supported Solyndra, a poorly planned solar manufacturer that has filed for bankruptcy.

Concerns about the environmental effects of carbon fuels and dependence on countries that could use their oil for political purposes encourage governments to develop local, renewable energy sources. The claim that Maine could be the Saudi Arabia of wind, implying there is so much wind power potential here that it could displace one of this country's major suppliers, is a somewhat fanciful expression of the view that we can become energy independent.

If anything, the United States is the Saudi Arabia of coal. Growth in its use for power generation in this country will be small compared with China, because of substantial concerns about its impacts on both land and air quality. There may be talk about "clean coal," but there has been little measurable progress toward achieving it.

Instead of billions for wind and solar projects, government could do what the private sector has not done: clean up coal use and make coal mine safety a reality. A national coal policy could designate where and how coal is to be taken from the ground as well as create tough land restoration requirements. Safety standards and inspections could be greatly increased. Such measures would make coal-fired power more expensive. But the effort is likely to be more cost-effective than the support that has gone to wind power, which also raises rates.

Regardless of pro-green power initiatives, the use of coal-fired power is expected to grow as a share of total worldwide capacity at about the same rate as will the newer resources. But it is expected to decline as a share of total supply in the United States. Oil use for power production will fall worldwide, while nuclear power is forecast to grow considerably, though not much, in this country.

Coal will remain king in the world, though in the United States it will continue to be second to natural gas. Though natural gas extraction poses new environmental problems, its economics work so well and its political vulnerability is so limited that it needs no government support to prosper. The energy market has increasingly turned to natural gas without the need for subsidies. This experience suggests that, despite recent proposals in Augusta, there is little need for government guarantees to back natural gas projects in Maine. If there are customers, new supplies and pipelines can be developed.

The DOE study does not look at efficiency and conservation, though they make more economic sense than promoting renewables or any other source of supply. These areas are not politically attractive, though they could create jobs now and provide long-term payoffs consistent with our national energy policy goals.

Inman said he still had more research to do on the truck before formally proposing a purchase to selectmen. If it meets his and the board's standards, a special town meeting might be called.

Selectman Steve Bies was skeptical of such a meeting, preferring instead an annual town meeting, where attendance is usually better.

Inman said he would not push hard for an immediate purchase. "There will be another truck," he said. "It's nothing we have to jump on." He also reported to the board that his department's budget is getting tight as the end of the year approaches. "In the first three-quarters of this year we've had as many calls as all of last year," he said.

Lakes Association
Selectmen approved $300 from the Miscellaneous Account to help the Lakes Association close a funding gap for repairs to its milfoil-fighting pontoon boat.

Repair costs were higher than expected, said Jim Chandler of the LA.

Bies said he voted to approve the money because it was a small amount, but did not want it to be considered as a precedent.

Wind project
As the project aims for completion in December, Spruce Mountain Wind developers hope to hold an open house at the 10-turbine site sometime in November.

Tom Carroll of developer Patriot Renewable LLC updated the selectmen at Tuesday's meeting.

Towers and blades have been going up, he said, with about one-quarter of the total of that equipment yet to be delivered to the site.

Towers are visible from Route 26.

The company hopes to offer tours on a weekend in November, when it is safe for the public to come to the property, he said.

For photos and other information on the project go to www.facebook.com/SpruceMountainWindProject or www.sprucemountainwind.com.

Conservation Commission
The board also received a research report from Marcel Polak of the Woodstock Conservation Commission on the requirements attached to the use of two funds related to conservation and land acquisition and improvement. Selectmen will read the report and discuss it at their next meeting on Nov. 1.

In other WCC-related business, selectmen signed an agreement for members to conduct trail marking and maintenance on Buck's and Lapham ledges trails.

able space, she said, but even they are sometimes turned away.

She said she spoke recently with another ACO who had such a contract, and he had been holding cats for three weeks.

Board Chairman Stan Howe said, "We need another place

we can depend on."

"We need a shelter in this end of the county desperately," Milligan replied.

The selectmen agreed to have Town Manager Jim Doar and Milligan explore the town's options — including contracting with the Harvest Hills Animal Shelter in Fryeburg — further and report back to the board.

Howe suggested the board be prepared to hold a special meeting on the matter if necessary.

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Garner chose to resign, but the committee members remaining wish to continue to work on this issue.

"It's a very complicated situation. There are lots and lots of issues to look at."

Noting Maine Governor Paul LePage's recent support for natural gas, "there may be opportunities that we aren't even aware of," she told the selectmen.

"A lot of really hard work is being done, and good, hard questions are being asked; and whatever the committee decides to recommend with have been well thought out."

Monthly supper brings many parts of the community together

An idea to provide a monthly meal to people affected by a poor economy has grown into an opportunity for community-wide fellowship.

For the past year and a half, the Bethel Alliance Church has hosted a free Community Supper on the last Wednesday of each month.

The Rev. Kevin Bellinger said community member Jean Waite "had a vision about feeding some families in the community who were struggling."

According to Waite, the idea came "from a concept known as 'Communities In Service to Themselves.' So often the focus on giving is on emergency needs, especially for victims of natural disasters and holibeen showing up for 6:15 a.m. morning practices, as well as "putting in the added effort during hard workouts.

"The kids have been very committed in putting in the necessary work to achieve such a goal.

"Such an achievement could not be fulfilled without the team really coming together as a complete unit.

"The greatest improvement is our overall depth, with a substantial improvement from the fourth-through-seventh place runners."

The lone girl Rebel runner also had a noteworthy achievement Saturday.

Gabi Stone, a freshman, placed sixth in 23:05, in her first championship meet.

"She positioned herself in the top 10 early in the race," he said, and moved up as the race developed.

"Gabi finished strong, showing she is a top contender in her debut season."

This Saturday the Rebel runners will compete in the Class C regional championships in Cumberland. The meet is the qualifying race for the state championships.

News for October 18, 2011
News in summary: First see the news below about an absentee ballot law change; read what you might have enjoyed at the Von Trapp concert; news from Bethel's Nonprofits group; progress report on the veterans' honor roll project; Bethel Oct. 17 Selectmen's meeting; Western Maine Street Rods foliage tour; over the phone guide to cemetery locations; Maine passive house building; new buildings on Barker Road and another This Old House the Maple Lane Farm.

Elizabeth von Trapp concert Elizabeth von Trapp's performance before a relatively small audience of 80 people proved that she could hold up her family's reputation for outstanding musical entertainment. Her singing voice was the best I have heard since we came back to Bethel to live, hmmm, 34 years ago.

When she sang "Moonlight in Vermont," I listened carefully to one of my favorite songs and there were very smooth high notes and relaxing low notes that she sang beautifully.

I wondered why more people did not come to hear her. Then I thought unless you are 50 or older you may not have the "Sound of Music" and the Trapp family tucked away in your memory. In between songs Ms. Von Trapp told some personal stories about her growing up in a famous (to the elder crowd anyway) family. She told about nagging her older sister to teach her how to play a guitar. Finally her sister taught her four chords and told after that she was on her own.

Another story was about how on a trip back to the Salzburg area, she was able to go into the mountain area where Julie Andrews was filmed singing the songs which later had become hits from the movie "The Sound of Music." In her Friday night program at the Methodist Church, Ms. Von Trapp sang "Favorite Things," "Sound of Music" and "Edelweiss" some of the most popular songs from the movie and Broadway show.

Nonprofits news

Jessie Seymour Perkins reported on the latest meeting of the Bethel Area Nonprofits. The Bethel Area Nonprofit Collaborative has been meeting monthly for nearly a year. We have many goals which all involve looking for ways to work together: to strengthen programming, reduce overlapping services, increase collaborative fundraising, and find ways large and small to help each other out.

The group won a grant from the Environmental Funders Network, which has the mission to enhance quality of place, to hire me as a Network Facilitator. I keep my finger on the pulse of nonprofits in the area by organizing meetings, maintaining our website at www.bethelmaine-nonprofits.org, and follow up when someone says, "Hey, we should do...."

Each month, we've invited a different group to give an in-depth update on its latest news and challenges. Our most recent discussion was with Amy Scott on the topic of local foods. She is interested in reaching out to local nonprofits, businesses, schools, and growers large and small to create an organized effort surrounding local foods.

Right now, our big projects are working with Gould and Telstar to create meaningful community service and service learning opportunities for students, we're planning a retreat in November to create a vision for the next several years of BANC, and we're planning a "Volunteer Social," to which we'll invite anyone who's interested in learning more about local nonprofits, with a tentative date of Dec. 1.

BANC is always open to new members, whether they are established nonprofits or a few folks with a good idea. For more information and a list of our members, visit www.bethelmainenonprofits.org or contact Jessie Seymour Perkins at jsp@bethelmainenonprofits.org or 754-8158.

Veteran's Honor Roll and monument

Another committee meeting was held at the American Legion Post home on Oct. 12 to review progress on the Post 81 initiative to create a veterans' monument. Present at the meeting were Chairman Richard Grover, Ramona Grover, Arlan Jodrey, Jane and Craig Ryerson and Bob Chadbourne.

Currently there are 1,089 names of veterans considered eligible to have their name included in the monument's honor roll. This roster starts with Revolutionary War veterans and continues to those currently serving in the military. Besides Bethel veterans the honor roll will list names of eligible veterans from Mason, Grafton and Albany.

Since these names will eventually "be etched in stone" there is a significant concern over getting the list indisputably accurate. During the meeting Bob Chadbourne brought up a number of names that he did not see on the current list. Mostly these names are of veterans who have moved into Bethel after completing military service. (It should be noted that all Revolutionary War veterans moved here after their service was over. This has established an original precedent.)

Jane Ryerson chairs the Fund Raising Committee. Mrs. Ryerson expects the cost of the kind of monument talked about by this committee will be at least $100,000 and probably more (maybe much more). When the Civil War monument was purchased in 1908 the cost of granite pedestal and soldier figure was $1,550. Mr. E.E. Whitney, Bethel's monument man of many years, took over once the monument arrived at the rail station. Whether or not Mr. Whitney donated his work was not reported in the news.

There was a little discussion about steps that would be needed to acquire town approval (and liability protection) for placing a monument.

Jane and Craig Ryerson seem to be carrying the heaviest part of the committee's efforts to verify individual eligibility for inclusion in the honor roll. One of the main criteria for living veterans is their eligibility for Department of Veterans Affairs granting of burial benefits which are grave markers and flags. These prerequisites have to be decided by individuals making application for benefits before their death. In most cases the application is just a formality because their service record can be "graded" at any time.

Bethel selectmen's meeting

RE: Absentee ballots and change in Maine election law. For the Nov. 8, 2011 election, the Town Clerk cannot issue an absentee ballot after 5 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 3.

Twelve people attended the meeting.

The public hearing on the proposed new sewer rates for FY 2012 was held. Two letters were read by the Town Manager from sewer customers objecting to the increase in rates at this time. Written comments asked for minimum charges to be assessed only on water actually used and to save money by combining the water and sewer operations. No sewer customers attended the public hearing. Comments about possible rate relief that were made in discussion concluded that minimum operating costs could not be paid if rate relief was granted at this time.

The Board voted approval of the proposed sewer rate increases. The approved rates are posted on the Town of Bethel Website in this document: "Public Hearing for Sewer Rate Increase." This document is listed in the Town News column.

Conservation Commission comments on the Bingham Land were circulated in a paper prepared by Jacquelyn Cressy and Landon Fake, who were both at the meeting. The report should be available for the public on the Town of Bethel Website www.bethelmaine.org. The Town Manager reported that Bethel has paid the Newry tax on this property for the current year. The consent agreement issued by the State is on the Town of Bethel website.

As to progress by the Natural Gas Committee: the committee will be meeting on Oct. 25, I believe, at 5:30 p.m. at the town office. It is not listed in the online Town Calendar.

The issue of dealing with stray cats and who is responsible for their management drew lengthy discussion. Animal Control Officer Sue Milligan and the Town Manager will collaborate on how to handle the problem and present

Western Maine Street Rods

Sunday morning almost the entire Irving/Circle K area in Mayville was filled with 50-plus old-time cars and about 130 people who belonged to the Western Maine Street Rods Club largely from the Rumford-Mexico area. Just after I started snapping photos of these beauties, Dillon Gillies biked in to become part of our two-man Bethel cheering section. Dillon wanted to make sure I was in one of the photos so he used my camera (held together with Duck tape) to get me in front of one of the cars.

Jim Knight from the Rumford Point-Rumford Center area is the club president. After he was pointed out to me I tracked him down in the store for a photo.

One of the cars in the group was a Buick Eight coupe. The Eight had an inline 8-cylinder engine and were produced from 1931-1953 (I believe). What also makes the Eight especially notable is that Stephen King wrote a book (2002) he entitled "From A Buick Eight."

Could not identify some of the cars and pickups but there was no car in the tour older than I am.

As part of their weekend outing the group had visited Frank Lowell's place in Newry to see his snowmobiles. After leaving Bethel they were going to get a special showing at Bob Bahr's Auto Museum at Paris Hill.

Last week I had started a webpage on old cars and old car ads from the Bethel area. Sunday I got another 20 or so photos to beef up my photo collection.

Dial "C" for cemetery locator assistance

Last week a lady who was looking for a certain grave at Riverside Cemetery called for help in locating the grave. After I understood who she was looking for I asked for her phone number so I could call her back. The number she gave was not a local one, but she was already at the cemetery. Luckily, I found the name in a few minutes and called her. In less than 10 minutes she called back to report success. I asked her where she was from and she said South Dakota.

Maine Passive House going up in Sunday River

Jesper Kruse, A Green Builder from Greenwood, is constructing a new house and garage just off the Sunday River road opposite Mike Lynch's home above Artist Bridge. Ken Hotopp of Bethel is the new home's owner. Mr. Kruse has Tom Wentworth, Todd Conant and Kinsey Durgin working with him.

A chief aim of passive green houses is heating efficiency. This house has 18-inch thick walls which will be filled with oversized insulation panels. Mr. Kruse says that you will be able to heat the house with a hair dryer.

The builder pointed out to me that since the surge in air-tight homes that occurred in the 1979-1985 period and suffered from inside air pollution, new methods of ventilation have been introduced. Using new technology, a house like the one going up will be ventilated and filtered so that air quality is no longer a problem. Fresh air coming in can be warmed by extracting heat from air in the house as it is exhausted. Allergy filters are also installed in the air system.

Mr. Kruse's e-mail address is jesper@mainepassivehouse.com.

Up Barker Road - new house and garage

At the beginning of Barker Road driving west off Route 2 Merrill MacInnis has built a new house (last year) and is in the finishing stages of a new two-day garage. These new buildings are on land referred to as the Arthur and Sheila Head place.

From their new home, the MacInnises have beautiful foliage and river valley landscape views to the north.

The History Club - This Old House: Maple Lane Farm, West Bethel

Along with the former Mayville boarding house inns still standing also count the former Maple Lane Farm's boarding house for summer vacationers. In the Lapham History of Bethel Maine it is noted as being owned by Edward P. Grover. (And the 1880 Bethel map shows it that way.) Michael and Nina Wheeler are the current owners. The farm is located on Barker Road in West Bethel. Like all of the boarding house inn farm houses, it is big. During the farm's boarding house years it operated much like the other Bethel boarding houses - picnics, berry picking and probably wagon trips for the boarders (now called guests or just plain tourists). After 1865 arriving vacationers could get off the train at the nearby West Bethel rail station. Nina told me that the Grover farm was also known for its dogs.

Nina told me that as far as she knew one of the surviving articles of boarding house days was the registration book. Fran Head said that the third floor's small rooms for the help are still there (and in one of them is the register?). Fran also told me that many of the large homes there had curved or arched truss beams in the basement that were built to support a large fireplace above them. (These trusses would be like smaller versions of the Paddleford trusses used in covered bridges.)

Andrew Grover (1805-1863) was Edward Grover's (born in 1839) father. On the 1858 map of Bethel, the dot representing the farm's location is marked A Grover. Next to the Grover farm is a dot for the Seth Wight farm. Edward Grover married Seth's daughter Augusta and one of their children was a son named Adrian. Nina Wheeler talked about Adrian Grover as being a previous owner of their farm.

If the old boarding house guest book is found, it will be interesting to see who some of the guests were back then in the good old days.

From Nancy Brown:

Eighty people attended the Elisabeth von Trapp concert on Friday, Oct. 14, at the United Methodist Church. Von Trapp is the granddaughter of Maria and Baron von Trapp, whose story inspired the "Sound of Music." She has sung professionally since childhood and has performed in venues from European cathedrals to Washington, D.C.'s Kennedy Center. She told the audience that when people asked what kind of songs she sang, she answered, "anything from Bach to Broadway and Schubert to Sting." That's what she delivered here. Her performance included popular music, her own arrangements of Robert Frost poetry, and several songs from the "Sound of Music." If you missed her concert, you can catch up on her concert schedule and order her music at www.elisabethvontrapp.com.

The Sudbury Inn is widely known for its great cooking. On Sunday, Oct. 9, the Inn placed second in the Judge's Choice Business Category at the annual Greater Bridgton Lakes Region Chamber of Commerce chili cook-off. First place went to Beech Hill Farm & Bison Ranch of Waterford and third place to Beth's Kitchen Café of Bridgton. The chili cook-off was part of the 12th Annual Fall Foliage 5K and Fun Run held in Waterford. There were 204 racers in the competition this year. Thirty-seven children ran in the one-mile Fun Run. The event raises money for the Tony Waldeier Scholarship Fund, which awards scholarships to SAD17 college students. The overall winner was Adam Goldstein of Hudson, N.H., with a time of 19:17. The first female finisher was Ann Marie Johnson of Westford, Mass., in 21:49. To see complete results, listing everyone who participated, go to www.waterfordfall5k.com.

I have written previously about activities that help raise money for local food banks. There is at least one Maine organization, Pack Life, which is raising money and food for needy pets. The Pack Life 2nd Annual Pet Food Drive is Oct. 1-31. Last year the organization collected nearly 2,000 pounds of food to help people keep their pets fed during the winter. There are two food drop-off locations in Oxford County: Androscoggin Bank, 170 Main Street in South Paris and Oxford Networks, 27 Fair Street in Norway. Please give if you can. For information about the food drive and other Pack Life programs, visit their website at www.pack-life.org. The website provides information on where to receive pet food assistance.

The "experts" have announced that the foliage has "peaked." However, there are still brilliant colors to see. I walked the Parkway Trail on Sunday morning. Not only are there still orange, red, and yellow leaves, but despite the recent frost, there are vibrant fall flowers along the pathway. I counted twelve different kinds of flowers, including tansy, goldenrod, yarrow, black-eyed Susans, red and yellow hawkweed, buttercups, pink and white clovers, and purple asters. Take a walk on the Parkway. There are wild flowers, foliage, a beautiful river view, and also an occasional moose or deer sighting.

If you have news you'd like to share, please send it to nancybrown1150@yahoo.com or call me at 824-2483.

It looks like the recent rain has brought about the least-liked Fall chore, raking. I hope that many of you were able to see Elizabeth von Trapp last Friday. I wasn't able to go, yet did get to meet her briefly at my place of work.

Butch and Ann Crockett, accompanied by Ann's daughter Suzi and her husband Ken, left for Missouri on the 6th and returned on the 10th to see Ann's son, Rick Roy, for his 40th birthday. Suzi also celebrated a birthday on the 7th. They very much enjoyed celebrating their birthdays together. Belated Birthday wishes, Suzi and Rick.

Then on the 13th there was a big Baby Shower for Paige Crockett at her mother's house in Bryant Pond.

As a reminder, don't forget to call me at 824-3220 or e-mail han@megalink.net with answers to the Trivia, news, information, and suggestions. I always like hearing from my readers.

In closing here is some food for thought, a quote from Irish playwright Oscar Wilde about the school of hard knocks, "What seems to us as bitter trials are often blessings in disguise."

Enjoy your week.

The Snow Valley Snow Goers held their annual landowner appreciation dinner on Saturday evening at the CEB. In addition to the landowners who were guests of the club, many people attended the very successful supper.

There will be a Flu Shot Clinic on Oct. 22 at the Town Hall from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. People who bring Medicare or MaineCare cards will receive a free shot. Otherwise the cost is $20, usually reimbursable by insurance. For more information call Karen at 369-1151.

The Maine Economic Development Council is assessing internet service in Oxford County, with a goal of improving the county's internet service. They have provided a brief survey that they would like Andover residents to fill out regarding their internet service. The survey is available at the Town Office. So if you are interested, please fill out the form at the Town Office during regular office hours. If your service is poor or non-existent, this is your chance to let those know who could do something to improve it.

The Andover Service Circle hosted its annual Senior Appreciation Dinner on Monday evening. A good turnout was treated to a meal with a choice of Chicken Pie or Lasagna, desserts and superb service. Thank you Service Circle, not only for the good meal, but for the chance to meet and greet our neighbors and friends.

There will be a movie and a potluck supper at the First Congregational Church on Friday evening at 5:30 p.m.

We have noticed that the past few days the leaves finally decided to give off some fall color. It seemed for a while that the fall colors were going to consist of mostly yellows and browns. We were going to Bethel the other day and noticed that the mountains on the north side of the river were actually covered in beautiful fall colors.

My brother, Steve McLain, was at the house Saturday. Before he stopped here, he checked out the town sign by the Wild River Bridge. It has been leaning more and more every day, so he straightened it up so it would look better.

Lise McLain attended the Senior Citizen Dinner at the West Bethel Grange Hall this past week. They enjoyed listening to Rep. Jarrod Crockett speak.

Steve and Lise McLain attended Sandra Gunther's retirement party from MSAD44.

Hugh's brother and wife, William and Barbara Lord, were visiting recently from Sun City West, Ariz. They spent a few days with Bill's daughter and husband, Rick and Kelly Gilligan in Amherst, N.H., before heading for a two-day stay at the Bethel Inn. All four of them were heading to Canada to attend the wedding of Bill's nephew. It was great to visit with them. On the first night, we met them at Rooster's Roadhouse for dinner. The second night we met them at the Bethel Inn and were joined by Bill's long-time friends and schoolmates, Sue Bartlett, and Ted White and Ted's wife, Martha, who is also a sister to Sue.

Linda Taylor called last Sunday to tell us that she had some extra pumpkins. She wanted to know if we wanted some for decorations. She also gave us some to decorate the s3s of the Town Office.

Town Office
The absentee ballots for Nov. 8 are here. Contact the Town Clerk if you are in need of one. Absentee ballots can be requested by calling the clerk, stopping by the town office on Tuesday evenings or by visiting the State of Maine website. The last day to request an Absentee Ballot is Thursday, Nov. 3. The Clerk will be available at the Town Office on Thursday, Nov. 3 from 5 to 7 p.m. Only electronic requests submitted through the online form approved by the Secretary of State will be treated as valid electronic requests. If an e-mail request is received directly from a voter, the voter will be instructed to use the online form. at: www.maine.gov/cgi-bin/online/Absentee-Ballot/index.pl

Gilead Historical Society
We are continuing to make progress on the corner lot. Dennis Wheeler arrived last Wednesday and began work on getting the railroad station ready for a coat of red paint. Barry Carver is looking at working on the schoolhouse. There are windows and doors that need to be replaced. There are clapboards that need to be replaced, also.

Hugh went over this past weekend and removed the storm windows on the school and did a little prep work before the carpenter arrives.

Members of the GHS that stopped by to check up on progress on the corner lot this week were Bob and Judy Bishop, Norm Buttrick and Cathy McGuire. Mary Tyler stopped by to update us on one of the fundraiser projects that she is working on.

Hanover

By CLEM WORCESTER

The Hanover Town Office reports that dog licenses for the 2012-year are now available and should be in use before

Jan. 1, 2012. When licensing your dog be sure to bring a spay/neuter certificate and an up-to-date rabies certificate. If a dog is not licensed by Jan. 31, 2012 an additional $25 will increase the fee.

Hanover officials are expressing gratitude to Jim Barker for the donation of office furniture that will be put to good use in the office.

Trustees for Gardner Roberts Memorial Library had their monthly meeting on Oct. 11. Much of the discussion was a review of the day-long Fall Festival held on Oct. 8. It was the most successful one-day event since the library reopened after being moved to the Ferry Road location. The handmade quilt for GRML is on display at the Hanover Town Office. Chances to win the quilt will be available until Nov. 8, Referendum Election Day, when the winning ticket will be drawn.

The Harvest Dinner at Rum-ford Grange last Sunday was well attended and very successful. Coming up next for Rumford Grange will be a craft fair on Saturday, Nov. 12. Tables are available to rent to crafters who wish to display their products at the event. For more information about table rentals call Vicki Clark at 364-2129. Available at noon for lunch will be corn chowder and other lunch items. The same day there will be drawings for the certificates and gift baskets.

Barbara Butler reported seeing a cow moose and a bull moose in her driveway a few days ago. She said it was the second and third moose sightings in her yard since she has lived at her home near Howard Pond. She has also seen bears, foxes, raccoons and many other types of wildlife.

Recent heavy rains have taken off much of the colorful foliage. One old fellow said it looks like possibly 75 percent leaf drop has occurred.

A Sunday afternoon power failure took place throughout much of Hanover and parts of Rumford. The failure lasted about six hours.

A motorist traveling along Route 2 stopped at the Hanover Town Office to report he had seen a large knife covered with blood next to the highway. The Town Clerk called the dispatch operator at Oxford County Regional Communications Center and advised them of the finding. A patrol officer was sent out and found the knife at Rumford Point. The blood? It turned out to be red paint. The officer took the knife away with him.

Things have been a bit hectic since we returned from the West. I still haven't got all those fall chores done; putting the garden to bed, getting the last of next year's firewood under cover, harvesting a few trees that have blown down and putting the finishing touches on our camper shed. I don't know how I did all those things when I was working 40 hours a week! Then, there are tons of leaves that are still piling up. Through it all, I still have time to watch some of the crazy things Shiloh does.

One day last week I noticed a batch of turkey wings and tail feathers near the corner of the garden. On closer inspection I saw quite a few of those soft "under feathers" as well, so I knew something must have killed a turkey there. I knew it wasn't Shiloh because he doesn't stay outside alone for more than a few minutes. It could have been a fox, coyote, owl, hawk or even an eagle.

NEW BOOK
Maine author Carole Enman Povellite of Andover has written a new book called "No Dogs Allowed." It has 62 chapters and many photos and includes a chapter on the Good News Church 40th Reunion, with photos. Also included are stories or lessons on true worship, forgiveness, praise, psalms, prayer, spiritual warfare, couples in trouble. "If We Are The Body," Do You Want To Be A Prayer Warrior?, faith, God answers prayer, and 4th of July birthday bash and reunion, and more. To buy a copy of "No Dogs Allowed" or her other book, "The Journey," call 392-2048. The books sell for $20 each.

A few days later I was cleaning up a firewood pile on the other side of the garden, and Shiloh was snooping around, chasing grasshoppers, flying leaves or anything else that moved. I didn't pay much attention to him until I saw him coming out of the bushes with a pair of turkey wings! The wings were still connected together by the breast bone and the wishbone. This made me think that whatever killed the turkey had carried or dragged it into the woods to eat it, but it probably wasn't a coyote, because a coyote would most likely have eaten all the bones as well as the meat. At any rate, Shiloh proudly carried his prize up to the house and laid on the lawn chewing on it. I decided I better not let him chew up the bones or he might choke on them, so I put wings and bones into the furnace and shut Shiloh in the house.

A while later, after a drink break, I was back at the wood pile, and Shiloh came to visit. Sure enough. He soon emerged from the woods with a turkey foot with leg bones attached. Another rather smelly prize! With all this forensic evidence, I concluded that most likely a raptor of some type was the most probable turkey assassin.

Last Monday, we had 3-year-old Noah for the day. He wanted to go outside with me soon after he ate his breakfast, but we told him it was too cold and wet to go outside yet, so he had to be content with a PBS kids program on TV. About 11 a.m. I took a break from cutting wood to bring in the mail and get a drink. I asked Noah if he wanted to go out and rake leaves, and he was immediately ready for that. We got his hat and jacket on and got the leaf rakes out, a little one for him. It was a bit windy, and Shiloh was chasing leaves. Most of our 15 or 20 sugar maples on the lawn have shed nearly all of their leaves, so there are plenty to play in. Noah and I began raking them into a large pile, and Shiloh joined the fun. He romped and tried to catch the leaves in his mouth as we raked them into the pile. Then he laid down in the leaf pile and let us pile leaves all around him, leaving just his head sticking out. I got Mona to come out with her camera for some pics. Noah got a kick out of the dog's antics, but he soon tired of raking and wanted to swing, so we did that for a while, and Mona went into the house with her camera.

That afternoon, Katrina came over to play with Noah, and Mona went to show her the pics in her camera. It was then that she found out that she had deleted all the pics in her camera accidentally as she was attempting to delete only one or two that she didn't want! I hate it when that happens to me!

The Harrison V.F.W. is sponsoring a dance Saturday, Oct. 22. The dance will be 8 to 12, BYOB. The band will be Rockin' Road Runners. They play '60s and '70s rock and roll music. Tickets are $10 at the door.

The Upton Historical Society will have their next meeting Oct. 23, 1 p.m. at the school.

The Ladies Aid Association meets weekly Thursdays 10 a.m. at Leslie's house. They have a hunters' breakfast scheduled for Oct. 29. The coffee will be on by 12:30 a.m. for the early risers. They will have a hunters' supper Nov. 12 at 6 p.m. You don't have to be a hunter to attend either meal, everyone is welcome. The Upton Christmas Party will be Dec. 3, 6 p.m. in the school. The Ladies would love to hear from last year's Santa; he did a great job, but the Ladies can't find the number they used to contact him, so Santa, please call Charlotte 533-2061 or Carol 533-2068, thank you.

The Upton House had some guests from Germany, Anika and Martin. It was their first visit to New England and they loved the fall colors. They also had some guests from southern California who enjoyed the foliage.

The woodshed has been full for several weeks, Neil and I put the last needed half cord or so in the cellar today. Firewood is done for this year. Hooray! Thank you to everyone that helped.

Here it is the middle of October and I noticed that I forgot to re-register my four-wheelers in June. I believe I shall send the State some more of my money before someone wearing a uniform notices my memory lapse.

Please call 533-2010 or e-mail me @ backstjoe@gmail.com with your news.

Hasn't this been a great stretch of fall weather. The evenings and mornings are crisp and the days warm and sunny. Can't hate that!

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK
Chief Bruce Pierce of the Newry Fire Department brought the ladder truck to the Bethel Early Learning Center as part of last week's observance of Fire Prevention Week. Preschooler Rosie Barstow is in the truck. (Submitted photo)

Throw in a little rain to keep the wells happy and what is left of the garden going and it's been an OK fall. This Saturday, Oct. 21, is grandson Aiden West's third birthday. Happy Birthday Aiden!

Monday, Oct. 24, is the 4th Monday, and the date that the Waterford Bridge Group meets at the Library. They meet at 6 p.m. both beginners and experienced players are welcome.

Thursdays, Oct. 20 and 27, the Adult Children of Alcoholics and Dysfunctional Families meets at the Waterford Library at 10 a.m. FMI please call 739-9115.

Soon, on Oct. 28/29 the Bethel Outing Club will have their fall Ski Sale/Swap. This year it is at Crescent Park School in Bethel. Always good deals to be had there.

Hope to see all this week out and about as October winds to a close and the leaves are falling. Soon the trees will be bare and we will be able to see further. I am glad that soon we will no longer have that old trailer next door. They are dismantling it as we speak. It will be nice to have that plot of land vacant again.

That is all for this week. Enjoy the nice weather. Soon the time change will happen (Nov. 6) and we will have dark sooner. I don't look forward to that, but oh well, what can we do.

The falls continue to be warmer than normal for fall. The rain is filling the wells. My old well under Berry's Ledge always dried up each summer and fall. Now I have "city" water for the pipes run by the house to Trap Corner.

The grass continues to grow requiring mowing often.

On Sunday, Oct. 23, the Rev. Sarah Shepley, a newly ordained minister in western Maine, will conduct the service at the West Paris Universalist Church at 9 a.m. Her topic will be "What We Reach For May Be Different, But What Makes Us Reach Is The Same." Jim Burke is organist. A coffee hour follows. All are welcome.

A small chipmunk outside in the driveway keeps Muffin entertained. I put a few crumbs of dried bread under the bit maple tree. He is real cute. I hope he stays outside and does not know his way inside.

Bring items for Togus patients and Gift Shop to next meeting. Also items to send a box to Ryan Reed and Ethan Ring who are serving overseas. Cards were brought to be sent to Alvina Weirs who is an 80-year member this month. Calls reported: 29. Sally Sawyer received the mystery package. Those who can are to go to the Veterans' Day program at the Legion. Candy was brought to give to the V.A. Home, South Paris, for them to use at Halloween.

Bus Riders' trip to McDonald's on Oct. 30 following morning church. Pastor Matt Jones will be speaker next Sunday.

Sunday dinner guests of Ken and Alice Hoyt were David and Pam Benson, Connecticut, Michael and Hillary Benson, Washington, D.C., Beth, Steve and Marybeth Hoover, JoAnn, David and Shawn Crockett, Jim and Charlene Hoyt. The Bensons also visited Leatrice Chase in Locke Mills.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Mary Dunham McMillan.

Sympathy also to Annella Burnham and Joyce Howe on the loss of their granddaughter and niece.

The Historical Society regrets the passing of Lenwood (Pete) Andrews. He was a distinguished figure in the community, and his casket factory was a landmark drawing many visitors when it was opened a few years ago.

I always love this time of year when the foliage is so pretty and the nights are cool and crisp.

This year we may have had our fair share of rain but I always try to think of how many people depend on rain, this time of year to fill the wells for the winter and that keeps me from complaining when the sudden shower or the rainy day appears.

Al and Crystal Lake returned home Monday after spending several days in Colorado Springs, Colo. While there they attended a reunion of Al's Vietnam war buddies. Crystal says it really is a very beautiful state.

Paula Kazarosian Steele invited the Women's Ministries group and anyone who was interested in learning to cook better meals to an afternoon of hands-on experiences and then to a sampling of the results, Friday.

It was a fun time and then we all sat down to a supper of roast beef, onions, potatoes, both sweet and regular, salad, and biscuits, with frosted chocolate cake for dessert. If the biscuits were any indication I think the cooking lesson was a success.

Those attending were Jennifer Scott, Madisyn and Sydney, Lorraine Larson, Laura Chesley, Eric Hartford, Crystal Lake, Gabe Neverette, John and Paula Steele, Paula and John have a very lovely and interesting home in Carthage and even the very heavy downpours did nothing to dampen the warmth and gracious hospitality they extended us or the enthusiastic greeting that their half-grown pup, Barney, welcomed us with!

BOYS WIN, LONE GIRL PLACES HIGH

High School Varsity Field Hockey

North Yarmouth Academy 2, Telstar 1 (OT)— #7 Telstar concluded its season with an overtime loss in a Western Class C field hockey quarterfinal matchup against #2 NYA. Lyndsay Merrill scored the Rebels only goal.

High School Cross-country

Telstar boys win MVC— The Telstar cross country team arrived at UMA on Saturday for the MVC Championships with the goal to show the competition their full potential. The day started with the lone Lady Rebel finishing 6th overall in 23:05 for 5k in her first championship meet. Gabi Stone positioned herself in the top 10 early in the race only to move her way up as the race developed. Gabi finished strong showing she is a top contender in her debut season. The boys' team was looking to achieve a milestone that hasn't happened since 1977...to be MVC Champions. It would be a tough feat with 3 time defending champion Boothbay protecting their 3 time winning streak. The running Rebels would not be stopped short of their goal with a strong performance of 45 points which out distanced both Boothbay 65 points and Winthrop 69 points. In a dominating fashion, the running Rebels put all five scoring runners in the top 16 places. Scoring for the championship were Josef Holt-Andrews (3rd 17:15), Ben Lewis (5th 18:14), Adam Mahar (8th 18:45), Bronson Dean (13th 19:22) and Matthew Keane (16th 19:40). Senior Casey Kellner assisted with gapping the competition by placing ahead of all the competitions 5th scoring runners in 27th 20:21. Saturday the team will be competing in the Class C regional championships at Twin Brooks in Cumberland. The meet is the qualifying race for the state championships.— Coach Dan Crooker

TMS Varsity Soccer

Telstar 3, Buckfield 1; Oct. 13— Telstar played their final home game of the season under wet and soggy conditions. Despite the weather and field conditions, the team played one of their best games of the year maintaining possession for a majority of the game through great passing, communicating, winning the 50/50 balls. The teams went into half-time tied 0-0, but early in the second half the Rebels got on board when Brendon Stearns put a beautiful header in on a great assist from Mitch Lehman. Later Mitch scored a great goal over the goalie's head, on a ball that was pushed through from hustle by Hunter Williamson. The third goal came once again from Mitch unassisted. Jacob Bennett came up huge in goal making many great saves on the wet field and played one of his best games of the year. Caleb Clarke held the team together, hustling all over the field and leading his team. Thank you to the brave fans who withstood the weather to watch a great game.— Coach Mark Kenney

MARY LEE HARRIS

Mary Lee (Elizabeth) Harris, 94, died peacefully surrounded by the love of her family Wednesday Oct. 12, 2011 at Chandler Hall in Newtown, Pa., where she resided for the last six years. She was a resident of Naples, Fla., New London, N.H., South Woodstock, Vt., Warrington, Pa., Germantown, Pa., Syracuse, N.Y., and the place of her birth and upbringing, Waltham, Mass. Mary Lee distinguished herself early by winning a full four-year scholarship to the College of Fine Arts (VPA) at Syracuse University for the best entering portfolio at the age of 16. She inherited great artistic talent from her father, Hoyland Bettinger, a listed artist and a founding member of the Carmel Art Association. She married Arthur Harris in 1938 and the couple moved to Germantown, Pa., where she was the Director of the Art Department at Curtis Publishing in Philadelphia.

Mary Lee's was a life well lived. Beyond raising three successful children, she served her community and the lives of others primarily through the United States Pony Club and P.E.O. International. She was the District Commissioner of the Huntington Valley Hunt Pony Club and then the Regional Supervisor for Eastern PA/NJ from 1958-1962, and a lifetime member. A member of P.E.O. for 66 years, she was devoted to improving the lives of women through steadfast sisterhood and education. She started the Doylestown chapter and a Naples chapter, and president of many. She was a prime mover in the formation of the Northeast District State Chapter (coalescing Vt., N.H., Maine, and R.I.) and its first Vice President. She was a friend to many. She was a volunteer for many years at the Doylestown Hospital and for the Shelter for Abused Women & Children in Naples, Fla.

She is survived by her three children: Stephen B. Harris, Esq. of Warrington, Pa., Richard B. Harris of Furlong, Pa., and Wendy Harris of Syracuse, N.Y.; four granddaughters, Tobi Harris Quinlan, Stephanie Harris, Emily Harris, Rebecca Harris; and one great-grandson, Patrick Harris Quinlan.

Mary Lee will be interred in East Bethel, Maine with family and friends in attendance. Contributions, in lieu of flowers, may be made to the women's shelter in your town.
